SURVEY SUMMARY

The 2019-20 NBA Roster Survey compiles data on the opening-night rosters of all 30 teams. The survey includes a breakdown of the height, weight, age and NBA experience of all 441 players on opening-night rosters (a list that does not include players on two-way contracts).

The NBA averages for those four categories are below, along with the school that has the most players, the two most popular jerseys and additional Roster Survey highlights. Page 3 has team averages and more tidbits. And scroll through for player-by-player lists by category.

NBA'S COMPOSITE PLAYER

Golden State forward Glenn Robinson III most closely resembles the average NBA player based on height, weight, age and experience.

Listed at 6-6 and 222 pounds and turning 26 in January, Robinson has played five NBA seasons (through 2018-19) since being selected by Minnesota with the 40th pick in the 2014 NBA Draft.

Robinson, who won the dunk contest at NBA All-Star 2017 in New Orleans, is in his first season with the Warriors after stints with Minnesota, Philadelphia, Indiana and Detroit. He is the son of former All-Star Glenn Robinson Jr.

In recent years, the composite player was Andre Roberson (2018-19), Tony Snell (2017-18), Klay Thompson (2016-17) and Evan Turner (2015-16).

MORE SURVEY HIGHLIGHTS

- Atlanta's Vince Carter, playing his record 22nd NBA season, is the league's oldest player at 42. Detroit's Sekou Doumbouya is the youngest player at 18; he turns 19 on Dec. 23.
- The 14 youngest players were born in 2000, the same year Carter won the dunk contest and finished his second NBA season.
- Nos. 0 and 5 are the most popular jersey numbers, worn by 20 players each. (No. 3 was most popular last season with 20.)
- Kentucky is the school with the most players on opening-night rosters (28) for the eighth consecutive year.
- Rosters include 108 international players from 38 countries and territories.
- A record 42% of players have NBA G League experience.
- Team age ranges from an average of 24.49 years for Phoenix to 30.24 years for Houston.
- Team experience ranges from an average of 2.73 years for Boston to 8.93 years for Houston.
- Dallas has the two tallest players: 7-4 Boban Marjanović and 7-3 Kristaps Porziņģis.
